Developments in the NHS
NHS England - Medium term planning framework: delivering change together 2026/27 -2028/29  24 October 2025 Medium term planning framework 2026-2029 On 24 October 2025 NHS England (NHE) and the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) jointly published a Medium Term Planning Framework covering the financial years 2026/27 to 2028/29. This briefing highlights the key points from the framework that providers should be aware of, including submission deadlines. It also sets out the work NHS Providers has done to influence and give our view on the guidance. The remainder of the briefing contains more detail about the guidance. Introduction Unlike most recent planning guidance covering only one year, this planning framework covers three years, following the three-year revenue and four-year capital spending review settlements published in the summer. The framework commits to more ambitious targets across cancer, urgent care, waiting times, access to primary and community care, mental health, learning disabilities and autism, and dentistry, with an ambition to achieve constitutional standards by 2028/29 where possible. It also 'returns to some of the basics that have taken a back seat over the last decade' incorporating expectations around patient and staff feedback, and aims to support delivery of the ambitions in the Ten year health plan (10YHP). Key changes to NHS objectives Elective care, cancer and diagnostics: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• In 2026/27: deliver a minimum of a 7% improvement in 18-week performance, or deliver care to 65% of patients within 18 weeks, whichever is greater, to meet the national performance target of 70%.• In 2028/29: Achieving the standard that at least 92% of patients are waiting 18 weeks or less for treatment.• Maintain performance against the 28-day Faster Diagnosis Standard (FDS) at 80%. Improve against cancer constitutional standards – 31-day performance to 94% and 62-day	This three-year roadmap sets out the NHS's plan to return to meeting its constitutional standards on elective care, with the aim of having 2.5 million fewer patients waiting more than 18 weeks for treatment by March 2029. https://www.england.nhs.uk/publication/medium-term-planning-framework-delivering-change-together-2026-27-to-2028-29/ NHS Providers have summarised the new planning framework's key points in a briefing available at: https://nhsproviders.org/resources/on-the-day-briefing-medium-term-planning-framework-2026-2029 For information
NHS England - NHS cost recovery: Information for NHS organisations who need to make and recover hospital charges from overseas visitors.	This guidance gives advice on charging overseas visitors (an overseas visitor is defined as someone who is not ordinarily resident in the UK) for some NHS services, as required by law under the NHS (Charges to Overseas Visitors) Regulations 2015 ('the charging regulations'). https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/nhs-cost-recovery-overseas-visitors/charging-overseas-visitors-in-england-guidance-for-providers-of-nhs-services For information of all NHS providers
NHS England - Identifying restrictive practice	This resource has been developed to raise awareness among staff of the range of restrictive practices that are used within mental health inpatient services and their impact on patients. https://www.england.nhs.uk/publication/identifying-restrictive-practice/

NHS England - Culture of care standards	This guidance sets out a culture of care standard for mental health inpatient services. Three new approaches support practical application for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • autism-informed inpatient care • culturally competent inpatient care • trauma-informed and harm-aware inpatient care The co-produced guidance sets out the culture of care everyone, including people who use services, families, carers and staff, want to experience in mental health inpatient settings, and supports providers to realise this. The standards apply to all NHS-funded mental health inpatient service types, including those for people with a learning disability and autistic people, as well as specialised mental health inpatient services such as mother and baby units, secure services, and children and young people’s mental health inpatient services. https://www.england.nhs.uk/publication/culture-of-care-standards-for-mental-health-inpatient-services/
	For adoption by all NHS-funded mental health providers
NHS England - Tackling modern slavery in NHS procurement	This guidance for procurement professionals has been updated post-consultation. The guidance sets out how regulations should be followed, provides examples of the scope of the regulations and details steps that organisations should take based on the assessed level of modern slavery risk. https://www.england.nhs.uk/long-read/tackling-modern-slavery-in-nhs-procurement/

Care Quality Commission (CQC) - Better regulation, better care: consultation on improving how we assess and rate providers	This consultation is about the CQC's proposals to evolve and improve their approach to assessing and rating health and care providers. It sets out: how the CQC proposes to develop their frameworks and guidance for assessing providers; and how they propose to change their methods for inspecting, assessing and awarding ratings to health and care services. The consultation closes at 5pm on 11 December. https://www.cqc.org.uk/about-us/how-we-involve-you/consultations/better-regulation-better-care
	Submissions to the consultation to be made by 11th December
CQC- The state of health care and adult social care in England 2024/25	The State of Care is the CQC's annual assessment of health care and social care in England. The report looks at the trends, shares examples of good and outstanding care, and highlights where care needs to improve. This report finds that demand for services is increasing across a health and social care system that is already under severe pressure – affecting how easily people can access care and the quality of care they receive. The report also highlights longstanding inequalities with some groups of people – including older people, people with dementia, people with a learning disability, and those with complex mental health needs – more likely to struggle to navigate services, often meaning their families and unpaid carers carry increasing burdens. https://www.cqc.org.uk/publications/major-report/state-care/2024-2025

Mind - The big mental health report 2025

This report finds that public attitudes towards mental health and people with mental health problems are getting worse, with more than one in ten unwilling to live next to someone who has been mentally unwell – even if they have since recovered. It warns that an increasingly negative public discourse about mental health, from politicians and in the media, risks undoing the progress in attitudes and stigma achieved in recent years.

Professional Standards Authority for Health and Social Care (PSA) - Right-touch regulation

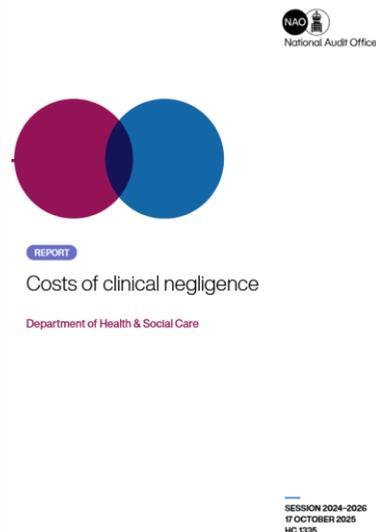

The PSA helps to protect the public by improving the regulation and registration of people who work in health and care. Its oversight involves reviewing the work of the regulators of health and care professionals and accrediting organisations that register health and care practitioners working in unregulated occupations. Right-touch regulation is the approach the PSA applies in its work, and encourages others to adopt it as well. It involves assessing the level of risk of harm to the public and deciding on the most proportionate and effective response to mitigate that risk – whether through regulation or other means.

National Audit Office - Costs of clinical negligence

Clinical negligence is a breach of a legal duty of care which directly caused harm to the patient. This report finds that the cost of settling clinical negligence claims has more than tripled in last two decades. Cost increases in the last ten years were largely due to a small number of high-value claims. It also discovers there is a risk that government may be paying twice in some cases: first by settling a claim, and then again by paying for further treatment as patients could go on to use publicly funded health or social care services, despite the settlement being paid with the assumption that they will use the private sector.

NHS Confederation - Reforming financial flows: lessons from systems

This report contains guidance, case studies and key principles to support designing and implementing new payment mechanisms. The 10 Year Health Plan has set out the need for payment reform and the requirement for integrated care boards, as strategic commissioners, to design and implement innovative payments mechanisms. The report argues that implementing these new financial flows will challenge long-established principles and ways of working in NHS finance, requiring a shift in mindset across the whole sector.

NHS Providers - Embedding quality: principles for a national quality management system

Making the shift from reactive quality improvement to proactive quality management could be transformational for patient care and staff experience, and may play a crucial role in preventing avoidable harm. As a tool to enable this shift, there is increased interest in the potential of approaches such as quality management systems (QMSs), which extend beyond quality improvement to include management of other key components of quality – planning, control and assurance. This briefing explores how trust-wide QMSs can support improvement and what trusts need from national support to implement and embed them effectively.

NHS Providers - Investing in the NHS: empowering the sector to drive productivity, renewal and growth

This report says years of underinvestment and challenges around capital spending have left the NHS with facilities that are too often outdated and unfit for purpose. It shows how the health service could unlock billions of pounds of extra funding for NHS buildings and equipment, transforming care for patients, reviving high streets and delivering key worker housing.
